

Economist and Thought Leader on Financial Markets and Global Crises

Nouriel Roubini is one of the world's most prominent economists and an internationally recognised expert on the global economy, financial markets and geopolitical risks. He is known for his prescient warnings of the 2008 Global Financial Crisis and for shaping debate on the world's most urgent macroeconomic risks.

Roubini is Chairman and CEO of Roubini Macro Associates, a New York-based consultancy providing strategic macroeconomic analysis. He also serves as Senior Economic Strategist at Hudson Bay Capital and as Chief Economist and Portfolio Manager at Atlas Capital Team. Roubini is Professor Emeritus of Economics at New York University's Stern School of Business.

Nouriel Roubini combines academic expertise with extensive experience in government and international economic policy. From 1998 to 1999, he served as Senior Economist for International Affairs at the White House Council of Economic Advisers. He subsequently held senior positions at the US Department of the Treasury, where he advised on international financial policy and the consequences of the Asian and global financial crises. He has also worked with institutions including the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the US Federal Reserve.

Roubini studied economics at Bocconi University in Milan and received his PhD in Economics from Harvard University. Before joining NYU Stern, he taught at Yale University. He later co-founded Roubini Global Economics, an economic research and consultancy firm specialising in the analysis of global financial developments.

His work focuses on the global economic outlook, financial markets, debt and inflation, geopolitical tensions, technological transformation, artificial intelligence, climate change and the future of the international economic order.

Nouriel Roubini has written extensively on international economics and financial crises and his analyses and assessments are regularly featured in international media. He writes a monthly column for Project Syndicate and is a frequent commentator on global economic, financial and geopolitical developments.
