

ANGELA OGUNTALA

Futures Consultant

Angela Oguntala is a futurist and a director at Greyspace – a design and futures consultancy that partners with organizations to think, plan and design for the future. She has led work in education, healthcare, finance, fashion, sustainability and in a range of other spaces across culture and technology, with clients ranging from the Fortune 500 to policy organizations.

Angela is a Salzburg Global Fellow, and has been named a Future Innovator by The United Nations ICT / Ars Electronica for her thinking and work. In 2017, she was also named a leading creative entrepreneur by Kinfolk and featured as part of their best-selling book series The Kinfolk Entrepreneur.

Angela Oguntala is a frequent speaker at conferences and events on future-facing topics, including themes that explore the possible impacts of near-future technologies on culture and society. She is an American, based in Copenhagen.

Topics (Selection):

- Re-imagine the Future