

ANGELA OGUNTALA

Futurist Innovation Advisor

Angela Oguntala is a futurist and internationally recognized expert on foresight, innovation and navigating uncertainty. Named a Future Innovator by the United Nations, she helps organizations understand the forces reshaping business, technology and society, and turn long-term change into practical action.

Her work is driven by the belief that the future is not something to be predicted, but something to be shaped. She encourages leaders to question established assumptions, develop long-term thinking and build organizations that remain adaptable as the world changes.

For more than a decade, Angela Oguntala was a founding partner of Greyspace, a foresight and innovation consultancy that advised organizations on emerging technologies, changing patterns of work and major societal shifts. Today, she works with companies, governments and senior leaders around the world, helping them anticipate disruption, strengthen strategic decision-making and build the capabilities needed to thrive in times of profound transformation. Her clients include Google, Microsoft, IKEA, Hermès, Cisco, Philips, Deloitte, BCG, Gartner, Heineken, Bayer, Swiss Life, the World Economic Forum, the World Trade Organization and the Wikimedia Foundation. Across industries, she supports organizations as they prepare for an increasingly complex and unpredictable future.

Angela is a Salzburg Global Fellow, joining an international community of leaders committed to addressing the world's most pressing challenges. She has also been featured as an expert on strategic foresight and futures thinking by outlets including Sky, TED and NPR.

She is a sought-after keynote speaker who has delivered hundreds of presentations to audiences worldwide. Her talks explore topics such as the future of work, emerging technologies, leadership, organizational foresight, sustainability and innovation in times of uncertainty. Rather than focusing on distant predictions, she equips audiences with practical frameworks for understanding change, identifying opportunities and making better decisions in rapidly evolving environments. In addition to keynote presentations, Angela advises leadership teams through executive advisory sessions, interactive workshops and tailored strategy engagements. She combines global perspective with practical insight, enabling organizations to respond to uncertainty with greater confidence, clarity and resilience.

Topics (Selection):

- Global Shifts
- Innovation
- Future of Work
- Emerging Technology
- Leadership
- Sustainability & Resilience