

Experienced TV Business Presenter
Editor and Lecturer

Sina Mainitz is one of Germany's best-known TV stock market experts. She has been reporting live from the Frankfurt trading floor every day since 2008 - competently, comprehensibly and with an eye for the essentials.

Having grown up in Marburg, she began her academic career with a degree in pharmacy, but then switched to business administration with a focus on media and communication management at the DHBW Ravensburg.

In addition to her work as a stock market reporter, Sina Mainitz works as a media and presentation trainer and gives young journalists the tools they need to assert themselves in the media world. She also passes on her experience as a trained yoga teacher.

With her book "Schwimm lieber im Meer als im Geld" (Swim in the sea rather than in money), she offers a new perspective on money, success and inner balance - well-founded, true-to-life and inspiring. As the host of her own formats, she brings women in particular closer to the topic of finance in an authentic way.

Whether on stage, in the studio or in front of the camera: Sina Mainitz combines sound business expertise with ease and a pinch of humor. She moderates high-profile events (German and English), produces content and holds keynotes on business, finance, mobility, aviation and society. Her many years of work have given her a deep understanding of the current economic and political landscape.
